PRESENTATION TOPIC

POWERHOUSE AT THE OFFICE... BUT POWERLESS AT HOME?

One of the most common complaints parents have is that their children just don't listen to them. Do you have a difficult time managing your family? Are you frustrated by the constant nagging required to get your kids to cooperate? Interestingly, some of the best managers in the business world find themselves in this predicament at home. From the dawdling third grader who makes you late for work every day, to the middle-schooler who refuses to do his chores, parents and kids get swept up into painful, ongoing control struggles.

In this eye-opening, interactive and funny presentation, Nancy Rose draws on her training as an attorney and CPA as she helps successful businesspeople translate their workplace success to dealing with their children. Her new model of parenting, Leading with Acceptance, gives parents the understanding and practical strategies necessary to be respected and effective leaders within their families. Combined with acceptance, this powerful leadership paves the way for thriving families and parental peace of mind.

Participants will discover:

- How Leading with Acceptance creates true influence with your children rather than blind compliance;
- The key to creating the connection with your children that builds mutual respect;
- The four strategies in the Leadership Toolbox for Parents (which you already use at work!)

This presentation is tailored for business and professional people.
